VOL. VII. NO. 154.

GREENSBORO, N. C. FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 1, 1901.

Price Five Cents

THIS IS NOW A DRY OLD TOWN

GOING OF THE DISPENSARY AND THE OPENING OF SALOONS.

Nowhere Except from the Blind Tigers May a Man Get a Drink—Some Joyful Party Last Night Hung Crepe on the Dispensary Door.

Last night they closed the dispensary door according to the statute made and provided.

And during the night some one, joyful at its death—never in mourning—tied crepe upon the door. It was perhaps the last, gay, joyful act of some of those whose cup of happiness runneth over.

And so, Greensboro is a dry town, except for the brindle tailed tigers. How long it will be so rests with the Legislature and the Aldermen. If the special license tax gets through in time, the Aldermen will probably grant license tomorrow night. The license will then have to be acted upon by the county commissioners, who meet next Monday. As soon as they act, the bar men, who are said to have their orders already in, will telegraph for their goods, which will come in on the next train, and the bungs will be pulled Tuesday morning, no doubt. Two or three of the dealers who have their goods on hand, have the advantage of the others and will doubtless be able to open up Monday afternoon if the licenses are procured.

The dispensary stock remaining over will likely be disposed of by the wholesale dealers from whom it was bought.

FINISHING MILLS SOLD.

Will be Operated in the Future by The Coulter & Lowry Company, of Philadelphia.

For several days there have been rumors afloat that the Southern Finishing and Warehouse Company would pass into the hands of Northern capitalists, and today the entire machinery and real estate of the company was transferred to Mr. John C. Lowry and other capitalists of Philadelphia. The new owners will at once enlarge and improve the plant and will thus be enabled to secure a large amount of business that the old company did not have. Under the old management the works did a most successful business, but it is the intention of the new firm to surpass all previous outputs.

In the future the plant will be run by The Coulter & Lowry Company, an old, and well known Philadelphia house, whose reputation as finishers is not exceeded by any other concern handling the same line of goods.

The coming of this new company will add largely to the State at large as well as Greensboro and Guilford county.

The new company will merit and enjoy the patronage of Southern manufacturers desiring to have their goods finished with the most technical and improved finish, and manufacturers in dealing with this company, which does no manufacturing and is not connected with any manufacturing or commission house, will find themselves put in possession of all the advantages the most successful handling their products will permit of.

Greensboro and North Carolina are glad to welcome these gentlemen as investors here, and their coming amongst us is only another evidence that others besides ourselves see the great advantages possessed by North Carolina, and we extend them a cordial welcome, and are glad to have their assistance in the upbuilding of the industrial interests of the Grand Old North State.

Tried to Kill Himself.

By Wire to The Telegram.

Brooklyn, Feb. 1.—Detective Desmond, who murdered James Mullen, attempted suicide this morning by jumping from the third tier gallery of the Raymond street jail. It is thought the skull was fractured but he may recover.

7,000 Reported Killed.

By Wire to The Telegram.

London, Feb. 1.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from Caccce states that fierce fighting is reported from Abyssinia, the casualties said to number 7,000.

A NOTABLE RECORD.

Mr. Leonard Charles Van Noppen Soon to Begin His Third Course of Lectures at Columbia University.

It is always gratifying to learn of the success of North Carolinians, especially when they go away from home and into the larger fields of action in our great cities. And so in this instance we are glad to learn that Mr. Leonard Charles Van Noppen, the brother of our townsman, Mr. Charles Leonard Van Noppen, is daily expected to return from a six months trip abroad and begin the delivery of his third course of lectures at Columbia University, New York. Mr. Van Noppen's lectures are unique in that he is the only authority on his subject, Dutch Literature, who has ever delivered regular courses thereon anywhere in the English speaking world. Last spring he delivered six lectures in the "Lowell Institute Course" in Boston, possibly the most distinguished course in the United States. Besides the honor of being invited there, Mr. Van Noppen has the further honor of being the youngest man as well as the only North Carolinian who has ever appeared on that platform and has recently been invited to deliver a second course of lectures there next fall.

Meeting of Assembly Committee.

The program committee of the North Carolina Teacher's Assembly will meet at the McAdoo House at 8 o'clock tonight. The members of Committee are Hon. C. H. Mebane, Dr. F. P. Venable, Prof. J. A. Holt, Prof. Edwin Mims, of Trinity College, all of whom are in the city this afternoon, except Prof. Mims, who will arrive later. The matter of place for the next meeting will be considered, and a general program for this year's work be outlined.

Mass Meeting.

There will be a mass meeting of the Sunday school census enumerators on Sunday afternoon at the Southern Loan & Trust Company building. The meeting will be called to order promptly at 2:30 o'clock, and it is hoped that every one who is to act as enumerator will be present, as matters pertaining to the work will be discussed, preparatory to taking the census next week, if the weather should be favorable.

This meeting will adjourn early enough for those who wish to attend the meeting of Sunday school workers at the Baptist church to be there at 3:30.

Locates Here.

Mr. T. J. Murphy, a recent graduate of the law department of the Columbian University of Washington, has settled in Greensboro and will begin the practice of law. Mr. Murphy is a native of Sampson county and has for a long time been in the service of the postal department. He is a young man of energy and character and will receive a warm welcome here.

Stock Solicitors.

There was another meeting of the stockholders of Central Carolina Fair last night. The following committed were elected to canvass for additional stock for the Association:

W. E. Beville, G. H. McKinney, S. L. Gilmer, W. F. Clegg, C. M. Vanstory, W. C. Tucker and Garland Daniel.

Revenue Collections.

The United States internal revenue collections at the office in Greensboro for the month just passed amounted to $10,078.12, which was an advance over the same month of last year. It was principally tobacco tax.

Note from Mr. Johnson.

To the Editor of The Telegram:

Rev. B. W. Spillman, Field Secretary of the Sunday school department of the Baptist State Convention, is to speak on the Sunday school work in Washington Street church Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

I want to say to my friends in Greensboro that Mr. Spillman, is, in my opinion, the best posted man in the State on the Sunday school work. I trust that all the Sunday school workers in Greensboro will hear him.

LIVINGSTONE JOHNSON.

RESOLUTIONS OF IMPEACHMENT

THE WORDING OF THE DOCUMENT AGAINST THE JUDGES.

The Course of Procedure When Judges Are Impeached—The Senate Becomes the Highest Court and the House is the Prosecutor.

The Telegram's special yesterday from Raleigh told of the introduction into the House by Mr. Craig of a resolution of impeachment against Justices Furches and Douglas. From the Raleigh Post we clip a more detailed account, as also the text of the resolution.

Impeachment proceedings have been instituted against Chief Justice D. M. Furches and Judge R. M. Douglas of the Supreme Court of North Carolina.

In the House of Representatives yesterday a resolution was introduced by Representative Locke Craig, of Buncombe, looking to the impeachment of the Chief Justice and an associate member of the highest court in the State.

The charges on which the impeachment proceedings are based are that both judges violated the Constitution in issuing the mandamus upon the Treasurer to pay the claim for back salary of Theophilus White, Shellfish Commissioner, when the Legislature, by express act, forbid such payment.

The resolution created a sensation when introduced in the House. While such action has been talked of, no one was expecting the matter at this time. The fact that the resolution was introduced by one of the leaders on the floor of the House makes the impeachment proceedings all the more serious. As soon as the resolution was introduced it was referred to the Judiciary Committee at the request of the author.

The resolution came up before a full meeting of the Judiciary Committee last night. It was referred to a sub-committee of five, of which ex-Judge W. R. Allen of Wayne is chairman. This sub-committee, which consists of Mr. Allen of Wayne, Mr. Craig of Buncombe, Mr. Graham of Granville, Mr. Connor of Wilson and Mr. Spainhour of Burke, is to consider the bill and make an early report. The indications are that a report will be made to the full Judiciary Committee early next week.

It is the belief of members of the Judiciary Committee that the resolution can be reported to the House early next week. If a favorable report is made then the resolution will come immediately before the House. One reading only and a vote by the majority of the members of the House is necessary for the passage of the resolution. A committee of five notifies the Senate of the charges for impeachment if preferred by the House. The act of impeachment is always the duty of the Senate. When the House prefers charges of this kind the Senate then becomes the highest court in the State.

At the meeting of the Judiciary Committee last evening ex-Judge W. R. Allen, the chairman of the committee, read the resolution and placed it before the members for consideration.

Mr. Craig of Buncombe, the author of the resolution, said:

"As there are both questions of fact and law involved in the resolution, it ought to be considered with the greatest possible care, and I move that it be referred to a sub-committee of five, of which the chairman of this committee shall be a member, and after making a careful examination of the resolution submit an early report to this committee."

Mr. Spainhour of Burke, seconded Mr. Craig's motion, which was unanimously adopted. Judge Graham suggested that the sub-committee be composed of seven, but later withdrew the suggestion.

Some one asked when the full Judiciary Committee would meet to receive the report. Judge Allen replied: "The question as to when the full committee meets is dependent on the work to be done by the sub-committee."

The action of the Judiciary Committee, which is composed of leading members of the House, evidences the fact that the impeachment proceedings are to receive serious consideration.

The resolution by Mr. Craig rebukes and condemns the late State Auditor, Hal W. Ayer, and the late Treasurer, W. H. Worth, for honoring the mandamus issued by the court in the White case.

No judge has ever been impeached in North Carolina. Several members of the judiciary have been on the ragged edge of impeachment, but resigned in time to save themselves. Two notable instances were the resignations of Judge "Jay Bird" Jones and Judge Norwood. The latter case is one of recent years. An interesting historical fact at this time is that there never has been but one impeachment by the Legislature of the State. The impeachment of ex-Governor W. W. Holden stands alone.

Resolution of Impeachment.

Whereas, The Constitution of North Carolina, Art. 4, sec. 9, declares:

"The Supreme Court shall have original jurisdiction to hear all claims against the State, but its decisions shall be merely recommendatory. No process in the nature of execution shall issue; they shall be reported to the next session of the General Assembly for its action." And

Whereas, The General Assembly of North Carolina, at its session of 1899, did enact chapter 21, Public Laws, sec. 1:

"The Treasurer of the State of North Carolina shall not pay any compensation to any person or persons claiming the same for services rendered concerning the shellfish industry unless such person or persons are authorized to render such services under the provisions of said act entitled 'To provide for the general supervision of the shellfish industry of the State of North Carolina, and ratified March 2, 1899.'"

And Whereas, Theophilus White brought an action of mandamus against Hal W. Ayer, Auditor, and W. H. Worth, Treasurer, to compel them to issue a warrant for his salary for services rendered concerning the shellfish industry; and

Whereas, David M. Furches, Chief Justice of North Carolina, and Robert M. Douglas, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, acting as judges of the Supreme Court of North Carolina, did on the 17th day of October, 1900, under the color of the power and authority aforesaid, in them as such judges, cause to issue from the Supreme Court the following order:

"Now, therefore, you (meaning the Treasurer aforesaid) are commanded absolutely and peremptorily, without delay, to pay the warrants issued as aforesaid by the State Auditor on you as Treasurer in favor of the plaintiff, and that in all things you comply with and obey the mandates and requirements of this writ, and that herein you fail not;" the following copy of which writ is hereto attached; and

Whereas, The said writ was an usurpation, issued in violation of the Constitution and in defiance of the statute of this General Assembly; and

Whereas, In pursuance of said writ, the said Hal W. Ayer, Auditor, of the State, did, on the — day of —, 1900, draw his warrant upon the Treasury and the said W. H. Worth, Treasurer aforesaid, did pay the said Theophilus White the sum of $831.15, contrary to the Constitution and Laws of North Carolina, as aforesaid; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives of North Carolina:

1. That the action of the said W. H. Worth and Hal W. Ayer be condemned as unlawful and unconstitutional, meriting the rebuke of the people of North Carolina.

2. That the action of the said judges of the Supreme Court is hereby declared to be in violation of the spirit and letter of the Constitution and in defiance of the plain statutory law of this State, and a usurpation of power subversive of the rights and powers of the legislative department of the government.

3. That the said David M. Furches, Chief Justice of North Carolina, and Robert M. Douglas, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of North Carolina, be impeached of high crimes and misdemeanors in office.

4. That a committee of five be appointed to go to the Senate, and at the bar thereof acquaint the Senate that the House of Representatives, in the name of all the people of North Carolina, will impeach David M. Furches, Chief Justice of North Carolina, and Robert M. Douglas, Associate Justice

SENDS IN SPECIAL MESSAGE.

GOVERNOR RECOMMENDS SETTLEMENT TAX ASSESSMENT CASES.

Says it is Fair and Just and that Assessment Should be Made Every Four Years. Impeachment Proceedings to be Pushed Special Dispatch to The Telegram.

Raleigh, Feb. 1.—The bill giving alimony to a wife in case of absolute divorce passed third reading in the Senate without debate.

The House passed an anti-lobbying bill, requiring lobbyists to register, but struck out the section requiring a disclosure of the fees paid.

The Governor sent in a message recommending a settlement of the railroad tax assessment cases as agreed upon by the Corporation Commission and the railroads.

He recommended that railway property be assessed only once in four years. He says the litigation so far has cost the State twenty thousand dollars, and that this is a case in which it is wise for the State and railroads to agree, and that what has been done is both just and wise. Many members of the House say the impeachment resolution will certainly be adopted and the committee will most probably report on it next Monday.

BEAUTIFUL WEDDING.

Miss Parks and Mr. Vestal Made One at Franklinville.

Special to The Telegram.

Franklinville, Jan. 31.—One of the sweetest, simplest and most beautiful home weddings that was ever witnessed in Franklinville was that of last afternoon, when Miss Sallie, the charming and attractive daughter of Mrs. Wincy Parks, plighted her troth to Mr. Charles L. Vestal, of Plainsfield, Indiana.

The wedding took place in the beautiful parlors of the bride's uncle, Hugh Parks, Esq.

The house was tastily garlanded with evergreens and flowers, with the soft lights of wax candles, making a beautiful and effective ornamentation.

In the parlor under an evergreen bower stood Rev. Wesley T. Craven, of Sanford, N. C., with the invited guests ranged on either side of the door.

The bride and groom were preceded by her maid of honor, Miss Ellen Parks, and by his best man, Mr. Hugh Parks, Jr.

Mendelssohn's wedding march was performed in a most charming way by the bride's cousin, Miss Sue Parks, of Siler City, N. C.

Then came the bride on the arm of the groom. The couple stood under the bower and were made man and wife by Rev. Mr. Craven in the beautiful and impressive service of the M. E. church.

After the ceremony supper was served from 5 to 7:30 o'clock.

The happy couple were the recipients of many handsome and useful presents from friends of this and other States.

This morning at 7:25 they took the northbound train via Charlottesville, Va., for their future home in the West.

Fear of Russian Retaliation.

By Wire to The Telegram.

Washington, Feb. 1.—Secretary Gage has ordered the imposition of countervailing duty on importations of Russian sugar be suspended until the attorney general can decide the question whether the Russian government is really paying a bounty to producers of sugar in Russia. The amount directly involved is not more than four hundred and fifty thousand dollars, but some American interests fear that Russia will impose retaliatory duties upon United States goods which might cause a serious loss to American exporters.

Murderers Leave for Prison.

By Wire to The Telegram.

Paterson, N. J., Feb. 1.—The largest crowd ever assembled at the Pennsylvania Railroad station at Jersey City gathered this morning to witness the departure of the murderers of Jennie Bosschlieter, on the way to prison at Trenton. Hisses and jeers followed McAllister, Campbell, Death and Kerr as the train departed.

MARRIED IN TEARS.

The Treacherous Conduct of a Father Who Forced His Daughter to Marry a Man She Didn't Love.

Dunn Banner.

On Monday night 21st, Miss Sarah Hudson accompanied by her brother, drove up to Mr. M. F. Gainey's residence on Broad-street, and the young lady asked permission to remain over for the night and to be allowed to stay for a few days. Her request was granted and soon after she had gone in the house, she related the sad story of her father attempting to force her to marry a man she did not love, she related the story in tears and with a broken heart. Mr. Gainey told her she could spend several days at his home. On last Saturday her father, Holly Hudson, came for her, and finding her at Mr. Gainey's, he made her a promise if she would go home with him she might marry the man she loved. The girl agreed to go, and they started out. Just as they were passing out of town some of the friends of the man whom her father wanted her to marry drove up in a buggy and suggested to the young lady, who was riding on a cart, she might ride with him on the buggy; she agreed to this and soon after she had gotten on the buggy her friend told her he was going to drive her away to marry Rufus Lee, the man of her father's choice. We are told that the girl broke down as if her heart was broken. She was carried down in Sampson and there married the man of her father's choice.

The girl's mother is dead and her father lives in Westbrook township, Sampson county. The man she loved was a poor man, and her father thought by marrying Lee she would marry into some property, so it is stated.

We consider this beyond brutal and the young lady has the sympathy of the public. Under such sad difficult circumstances, if possible, we trust she may be happy.

WANTS THE LAW.

A Greensboro Barber Thinks the Proposed Plan Would Have a Fine Effect on His Trade.

To the Editor of the Telegram:

As I am a Knight of the Razor, I feel it my duty to say something in the codifying of this law, which I heartily endorse, for it is a step that should have been taken long ago. It will have a dignifying effect on our profession, and if any class of men need encouragement it is the barber, and I think it should meet the approval of all for several reasons:

1st. It makes him come under the head of a professional man instead of a mechanic.

2nd. It makes your patient submissive to you as that of a physician or lawyer, for you are the doctor, and you are supposed to know the best treatment for the face, hair, or scalp.

3rd. It protects you from the effects of the would be barber, that class that can cut his brother's hair and gets conceited and thinks he is a barber and comes to town and opens a 5 cent shop, knowing nothing about the responsibilities of his trade, and not know that such joints are regular germ harbors.

4th. It also protects you by purifying your profession, by revoking any certificate of registration granted by it when the licensed person shall be convicted of crime, habitual drunkenness, gross incompetency, failure or refusal to properly provide against disease or violation of the rules of the board.

That alone is enough to demand the support of the boss barbers, for I am free to say that the evil of drunkenness is the greatest the boss barbers have to contend with. I think that phase wherein it says that it shall not apply to villages having less than 1,000 inhabitants, for it is those small villages that suffer most with this would-be barber, and I think those people should be protected just as much as those in larger cities, but if Brother John wants to cut his neighbors hair and his neighbor is willing why that's alright, for it only shows a needful courtesy.

W. S. CRAIG,
A Barber.

ARE YOU INTERESTED IN THE FASHIONS?

New York, Feb. 1.—Mid-season models are most interesting for what they foreshadow of modes to come. The frocks now being designed for wear a few weeks hence at the winter resorts give a pretty good general idea of what the spring frocks to be evolved later will be like. We may expect both boleros and undersleeves for some time to come. Each of these fashions is too pretty to be banished after a few months' favor only. Trimmed skirts, or the attempt to trim skirts, will again appear this spring—as it has for so many springs, summers, falls and winters past. The plain skirt has too firm a hold upon our affections to be given up yet, however, and there will be undoubtedly any number of untrimmed skirts—particularly with tailor-made costumes.

Some of the newest tailor-made suits are distinguished by being stitched all over. One for instance, has a novel little jacket, extremely short in the back and quite long and pointed in the front, that is striped with stitching from throat to waist. The material of this jacket is a golden brown cloth. The stitching is in gold thread. Small gold bullet buttons fasten the overlapping fronts. The skirt is a mass of stitching. The gold thread appears at the hem and upon nearly every seam. The left-hand seam of the front breadth laps in the same way as the jacket front and is similarly ornamented with buttons.

Gray promises to be more popular than ever this mid-season and in the spring to follow. Combined with yellow it is in especial favor. Gold and gray are likewise much in vogue, but the yellow is never.

Cotton fabrics have never before appeared in such ambitious designs, and there is a certain danger in this very fact. Some of the embroidered muslins have lace entredeux woven in the fabrics. These are imitations of the expensive muslin gowns, of hand work and rich insertion, that have been the expensive features of summer toilets for the last few years.

Shirt waists are already being ordered. Most of these are in soft muslin a little off the white, such as pale pink, blue, lavender, yellow and green. These last two shades are particularly prominent in the latest cotton fabrics. The waists are trimmed often with collars of sheerest white lawn, finely embroidered, or with lines of hand tucking in addition to a peculiar kind of hand work, which is neither smocking nor shirring, and which has as yet, as far as can be learned, no definite name. But these deep collars are a feature of the smartest thin waists.

An effective material, "rat tail," is a net made of a cord finely woven and having a soft finish. It is different from the fish net that sprang into vogue a few seasons ago. A white gown of "rat tail" having insertions of Irish lace and trimmed with little frillings of mousseline de soie, with touches of black velvet ribbon, is a lovely novelty, one particularly suited to a debutante.

Another pretty idea for a girlish white gown is to trim a tulle with crosswise bands of white crepe. If silver spangles are added to the tulle this is particularly effective. The gown in mind had the bands heading ruffles of the tulle, the ruffles dotted with tiny silver paillettes. On the corsage was a waistband of crepe, with a full blouse of the thin material over it. There were some silver embroidery, and from one shoulder fell a trail of pink roses with foliage made of silver gauze.

A handsome walking gown of dark ruby cloth is made with a tunic falling over a short circular blouse. The tunic is trimmed with one wide band and two narrow bands of black velvet, each band finished top and bottom with a dull green silk cord. There is a short jacket with an opened under-vest of black velvet embroidered with the dull green. This leaves a chemise and narrow front made of white mousseline de soie embroidered with green. The jacket has a turnover collar, faced with the green embroidered velvet and holding a Louis XIII cape collar of heavy white lace.

A gown of "rat tail" net has a flounce on the skirt and as a closed bolero on the waist a design of artificial cherries, with the leaves embroidered on the net. The bolero is closed with a bow and ends of dark green velvet. The underblouse, from waistband of green velvet to choker of the same, is of the white net. The upper part of the sleeve is close and trimmed down the outside by the embroidery. These are full, puffed undersleeves of white mousseline de soie.

A black jet gown that is laid in small pleats on the skirt has on each pleat a row of inch wide black velvet ribbon, with a row of narrow ribbon beside it. There is a closed, pleated bolero, trimmed in the same manner, that hangs over a high corselet of black satin. There is a decolletage, slightly pointed, and filled in with a lattice work of narrow black ribbon velvet, most effective over a pretty neck.

It should be remembered, if one is devising gowns to be worn in the spring, that the tendency is toward sleeves that increase in fullness at the bottom. The models that dressmakers are showing for thin gowns all have a sleeve close at the shoulder, but increasing in fullness into a little cuff at the wrist. The cuff may be of a second material, but there is no undersleeve. If the elbow sleeve is preferred, the prettiest and newest idea is to make it close at the top slightly bell shaped and finished with a puff of some thin stuff at the elbow. At present there are all kinds of elaborate and wonderful undersleeves worn, and, in addition, cuffs added to the upper sleeve, but the dressmakers are slightly doubtful that this style will continue. In making gowns for some months ahead it is certainly wise to try some other effect.

For the weakness and prostration following gripe there is nothing so prompt and effective as One Minute Cough Cure. This preparation is highly endorsed as an unfailing remedy for all throat and lung troubles and its early use prevents consumption. It was made to cure quickly.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 1

THE SOUTH.

The Baltimore Sun, commenting on the remarks of a contemporary regarding "the renaissance of Dixie," says:

Our contemporary appreciates the possibilities of Dixie, recognizing what has been done in the last 20 years as a sure promise of the future. In railway development there have been vast improvements since 1880. It is, in fact, the consolidation and expansion of the weak Southern railways of former times that has made possible and facilitated the rapid growth of all sorts of industries. How intense the industrial activity has become over a wide area is illustrated by the conference at Washington Tuesday of representatives of the Southern Railway, Norfolk and Western, Chesapeake and Ohio, Atlantic Coast Line, the Seaboard and various steamship companies in reference to an impending "car famine," caused by heavy traffic. To the cotton-growing business is added the manufacture of cotton yarns and cloth. The utilization of cottonseed oil created a new industry. Lumbering is now an important interest. Coal mining and the manufacture of iron and steel challenge attention. Locomotives are made for the world at Richmond, and shipbuilding has attained large proportions at Richmond and Newport News. The large exportation of pig iron, steel and cotton cloth from the South is an impressive fact. Speaking of New England's promotion of the Civil War, "the disinterested observer," says our contemporary, "can see in the gradual drifting of the industry from New England's watercourses to Southern villages a sort of poetic manifestation of the moral law of compensation. Now New England laments the remote consequences of her acts as she hears afar the whir of Southern spindles and notes the decreasing hum at her own doors. Development and diversification of industries means growth in population, elevation of the mass average in civilization and the expansion and diversification of needs that accompany advancing civilization and means. In other words, the increase of Southern industries means increase of Southern wants, and in this latter increase the whole country is interested. We bid our readers to look to the South, for in it is the opportunity of the immediate future."

There can be no doubt that the South is now the land of promise, as the West was twenty years ago. It presents more and better business opportunities than any other section. Many young Baltimoreans, it is observed, are now locating at Southern industrial centers, following the course of Baltimore capital, which ever since the Civil War has been flowing southward in an unbroken stream.

The Sun, perhaps, knows to what extent Baltimore capital has been coming South, but we are inclined to believe that it is rather giving color, merely, to the mistaken idea that the South's renaissance has been due to outside capital. The South is doing and has done all that the Sun says, but the work was and is being done almost entirely by home capital. Perhaps this is less true of railroad building than of anything else.

Our correspondence of a day or two ago told of the organization of another building and loan association at High Point. These are very valuable institutions, especially of great value to the men who work for small salaries and yet desire to own their own homes. We know of instances in which they have cut very important a figure in the growth of towns. It is a matter of surprise that Greensboro does not have any. She should have two or three.

We congratulate the Industrial and Immigration Association on its rejuvenation and express the hope that it may now become more vigorous and useful than it has ever been.

The Telegram has already spoken its condemnations of the impeachment proceedings now going on in Raleigh.

THE LITTLE LADY.
(Of Four Bright Years.)

I.

The Little Lady hath for me
Only her kisses tender,
And in her eyes a light I see
That's all of earthly splendor.
She knows not when the world goes ill:—
She only knows she loves me still!

II.

The Little Lady's smiles so bright
With mystic spells have bound me;
She waits for me when falls the night,
And twines her arms around me.
She knows not where my steps may be:—
She only knows her love for me!

III.

Dear Lady of the tender years
And of the bright eyes beaming,
God keep those trusting eyes from tears,
And God be with your dreaming!
I know not what those dreams may be:—
I only know your love for me!

History of Guilford.

Raleigh Post.

Those who feel any heart-throbs of patriotism will be much interested in the revelations and research into North Carolina's matchless history.

The History of Guilford county—a much more exhaustive study than that of Alamance—is being carefully studied by Miss Sallie W. Stockard. It is determined that this history shall show the organic growth of Guilford county from its earliest settlement up to the present day.

Its preparation was begun September last. It is hoped the work will be completed during the year.

While in Raleigh during the session of the Legislature, in addition to the mechanical work of bare necessity, the historian of Guilford county history is not asleep on the subject of this, surely one of the most noteworthy and historical counties in this or any other State. Any sort of information, or suggestion or criticism in regard to it will be gratefully received by the fair author. So you are interested—you surely are if loyal to the Old North State—in this work concerning Guilford county which promises to be of great value and a contribution towards a history of North Carolina worthy of her.

"Pa," asked little Georgie, "what's the pomp and circumstance of war, anyway?"

"Gen. Miles," replied the old gentleman without looking up from his paper.

Boston Herald.

By reference to Tom Watson's biography of Thomas Jefferson it will be found that the Declaration of Independence was finally adopted on July 4 because the members of Congress were so greatly bothered by the flies which swarmed into the hall from a livery stable near by that further debate became almost impossible. On such causes sometimes hangs the selection of dates for great national anniversaries.

of the Supreme Court of North Carolina, of high crimes and misdemeanors in office; that this House will, in due time, exhibit the particular articles of impeachment against the above-named judges of the Supreme Court, and make good the same, and that the committee do demand that the Senate take order for the appearance of the said David M. Furches, Chief Justice, and Robert M. Douglas, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of North Carolina, to answer the said impeachment.

5. That the Speaker of the House of Representatives appoint seven members of this House as managers of the said impeachment to prepare and report the said articles against the said articles against the said David M. Furches and Robert M. Douglas, with power to send for persons, papers and records and to take testimony under oath.

Leases City Property.

Mr. A. Weatherly yesterday leased a part of the city property of Mr. John A. Hodgkin, and will rent it out. Mr. Weatherly has a large amount of property on his rental list, and it keeps him hustling to collect from all his tenants.

NOTHING, SUGGESTED BY NOTHING

Buffalo!

"Oh, yes, I'll come South again, to the land of the balmy atmosphere, to spend the winter," said a Delaware man this morning. "Maybe I will when the grip is a thing of the past. I've been down with it, my family has been down and all the occupants of our boarding house have been down. It was a real hospital. Oh, yes, I'll be down again next winter."

"What are the folks who take 'sperits' to keep off the grip going to do now?" asked Mr. Morningtoday.

"Greensboro is a coming town, no doubt about that. She is coming into the lead with diversified industries, which are a sure and permanent basis of prosperity. Keep up the diversification."—From a man who knows the whole State.

Don't you, says Dryden, "Become the unworthy browse Of BUFFALOES, salt goats, and hungry cows."

"Old exchange or two; any of the city papers; that will do; getting back into the world again. Don't gimme none of yer 'down South' any more, and yer rising tide of prosperity. The fresh is over. I've been down here six weeks and got three days' work. I'm back for Pennsylvania."

Having secured a required amount of reading matter for tonight's camp fire, this six weeks' prospector in Southern fields passed on, carrying with him his disgust with Southern opportunity and prosperity. Prosperity had not, in fact, thrust its hand heavily upon him. He may have walked all over, about, and around opportunity, but the latter was too polite to intrude upon him, and he didn't know how to be gallant and coaxing and to win her smiles. So he moved on. He had contracted the habit of moving on, till finally nothing else suited him. Time became too short to spend much of it in one place. Poverty was his only possession and he could never deposit that. A hickory stick across the shoulder supported a bundle on the back. This bundle was dress suit case, commissary and all necessary implements of travel—some kind of travel. Brogans, worn and muddy, were evidence that this kind of travel was not that which throngs Pullmans. Gray hairs and green goggles protruded back and front from under an old cap. But, "so long," men whose business call them to Philadelphia have no time to tarry.

Buffalo: "An ox-like animal, with long horns, ungainly aspect and fierce countenance."—Universal Dictionary.

A youngster about two feet high presented himself before Teller Sherwood at the Greensboro National Bank this morning. But he didn't stop at presenting himself, but presented a check also. There appeared to be a little irregularity about the check being presented by so young a child, and so he was questioned. "What do you want to do with this?" he was asked. "I want to get thum money," was the reply. "Come round and sign your name," said the teller. The youngster walked to the desk and proceeded to sign with as much deliberation as if he had been signing checks for years.

First Party—"I have not been in Greensboro in several years before, and the changes that I notice are marvelous. Every where are signs of growth and development, and the population has jumped since I was here enormously. I would not have known the place."

Second Party—"It is true. I've been all over North Carolina time and time again, and I regard Greensboro as one of the best if not the best place in the State. Certainly it is in some respects. The buildings on its business block are much more city like than any I've seen. And you see new ones are going up all the time."—From the conversation of two strangers as they walked together down the street.

All Buffaloes are requested to meet promptly at their feeding grounds on Prairie Green at 8 o'clock tonight. Business of importance to be transacted.

I. & I. ASSOCIATION.

A Business Meeting Yesterday Attends to Several Matters.

The Industrial and Immigration Association met yesterday in the directors' room of the Greensboro National Bank.

Messrs. Johnson and Watson appeared before the Association and asked for help in the matter of taxes on their recently started shoe factory. Their request was favorably acted upon by the Association.

The matter of the fast mail appropriation by Congress was also taken up and discussed, and the secretary was instructed to write to our Representative and Senators in Congress asking them to use their influence for the continuance of the appropriation. This appropriation provides for a fast mail service between Boston and New Orleans, and greatly facilitates the delivery of Southern mail. Similar action to this has been taken by the Boards of Trade and other organizations throughout the states affected, in opposition to the recent attempt to deprive the South of the appropriation.

Several other matters were discussed looking to the upbuilding of Greensboro, and committees were appointed who will immediately go to work, and it is hoped, will in the near future locate several other enterprises in the city.

The Queen's Body Removed.

London, Feb. 1.—At 1:15 the Queen's coffin left Osborne House, borne by the Queen's Highlanders and placed in a carriage. The Queen's grenadiers formed a double line on either side of the carriage. The Queen's pipers marched directly in front of the carriage. The march began to Trinity pier, and at 2 p. m. the coffin was borne to the Royal yacht Alberta by seamen of the Royal yacht. The King and Queen and German Emperor and other members of the royal family embarked on the Alberta, which left for Portsmouth, passing through a double line of warships of all nations, minute guns being fired.

The Royal yacht was preceded by eight torpedo boat destroyers. The coffin was placed on crimson dais, the curtains drawn back and tied to four posts. In the wake of the Alberta came the royal yacht Victoria and Albert with King Edward and Queen Alexandra and the English royal family. The royal yacht Osborne with other royalities, and the imperial yacht Hohenzollern with Emperor William, the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and others, followed by the admiralty yacht Enchantress.

We have just put on sale a remarkably good line of ladies' shoes to be sold at $1.50 and $1.75. They come in both regular heels and spring heels, lace and button, kid and patent tips, all sizes from 2 1/2 to 8. Thacker & Brockmann.

A WOMANLY MANIA.

That Old Habit of Putting Up of Canned, Jammed, Preserved, and Pickled Stuff.

After the husband had been in the cellar battenning the windows down for winter he took a long, hard look at his wife, this being his method of inducing her to show the first flickering of temper, says the Detroit Free Press.

"Now, what's the matter?" and she looked just as dangerous as he.

"I have been counting the jars of canned, jammed, preserved and pickled stuff in the cellar." Were you under the temporary delusion that we are running a hotel? Do you take us for a couple that can consume the product of all kinds of orchards and two or three truck farms? Is it your theory that we live to eat? Now, my first wife—

"Cut that out, Mr. Henry William Jones. I've listened to all this first wife talk I'm going to. I don't care a rap if she never canned a can or pickled a pickle. I don't care whether she tried to starve you or not, or whether you were such a poor provider as to drive her to an early grave. I'm your wife now, and if you ever find an empty cellar it will be because you have published a warning against giving me credit, or the house has been burned down."

"But, dearie, don't you know that we can buy all that sort of thing for a good deal less than it costs to prepare it at home?"

"Don't 'dearie' me. You come in here looking as savage as a Chinese Boxer and you can't softsoap me now. In the first place, I like to put up fruit and vegetables. I know how to do it, and if there happen to be a few hundred cans to carry over from one winter to another we are that much to the good if you fail or get sick. In the second place, I know how to preserve these things. I just stick to the good old pound-for-pound rule in fruits and season-to-the-taste in vegetables. I give you better than you could buy at a million dollars a can, and if you don't know enough to appreciate it I'll have no difficulty in returning to the home from which you enticed me."

By this time she was in tears, and he was busy, with both arms, striving to console her, while assuring her that, the more she canned, preserved, jammed and pickled, the more he loved her.

AS IT SOMETIMES HAPPENS.

The Customer Waits When the Saleswoman Is in a Conversational Frame of Mind.

"I want gloves," said the young woman who stood in front of the counter devoted to handwear to the young woman who stood behind it. "Pearl gray, No. 5 1/2, three buttons."

"One moment, please," said the young person behind the counter, reproachfully, according to the Baltimore News. "So, when I saw it was him (she went on to the girl next to her), I said: 'What are you doing here? How can you have the terrible impudence to face me after the things you said to Mamie about me?' Just one moment, please (this to the customer). And he said to me, says he: 'I have never spoken an unkind word about you in my life. To the contrary, I have—I'll finish when Monty goes by.'"

To the customer: "Here are the only dark red gloves we have in stock, and I got the right number the very first time—see, 6 1/2. Will you have them charged, or pay for them? Don't want red gloves? Well, really (stiffly). I would be glad if you would tell me what you do want. Pearl gray! Then you'll have to move up to this end."

"So, Mamie, when he found that I knew all he was dreadfully embarrassed. He says 'she's a perfidious wretch'; that's what he called you, Mamie, truly he did—don't want clasps! Why, they're not wearing buttons at all this year. Clasps is the only thing society girls ask for."

"No, miss, you can't wear a 6 1/2 glove in this make. It'll be too large—said 5 1/2? Well, I didn't understand you so at all. Of course, you may have done so, but I didn't hear you. Yes, I'll fit them. Rest your elbow on this cushion. Teny rate, Mamie, he's got to crawl when he comes back for forgiveness. I'm not going to overlook everything: 'tisn't in human nature to do it. I might go to church with him Sunday night if he's good and 'umble enough."

"They look grand on your hand. Pay er charge? I told you right at the first this was the $1.50 grade. No, I won't write to him; 'course I won't. Ca-ash!"

Vain Resolutions.

Make no vain resolutions. The safest way is to strengthen yourself in every encounter of life by meeting each particular one with patience and ethical insight. Do not make any elaborate plans as to what you intend to do. A resolution once made is sacred; you cannot break it without committing sin. You can no more violate promises to self than you can those made to a stranger. Between the "objective you" that bears and suffers and the "subjective you" that sits and wills, there should be an inviolable compact. You that must suffer must obey when the master-self commands. And when the decree goes forth let the subservient self be found always willing to respond.—American Hebrew.

Aren't Men Ungrateful

AT ONE o'clock on Monday afternoon last Mr. Jobson brought an old schoolmate of his, whom he hadn't seen or heard of for years, up to his house for lunch.

Monday, it is not necessary to remind our gentle readers, is wash day in all well-regulated households.

Mr. Jobson hadn't been home for lunch, except on Sundays and holidays, for years. Of course, it just happened that out of the seven days in the week Mr. Jobson could have lighted on none other so suitable for bringing an old boyhood chum up to his home for luncheon as on Monday—wash day. Men don't know anything about the dreariness of wash day, anyhow. They see the ironed linen stacked up on the bed on Thursday evening, say, and they vaguely wonder how it was done and where it came from and who did it, and so on. If rainy weather or some other interposition of providence prevents its being stacked up on the bed on Thursday evening, and the boss of the house happens to be out of handkerchiefs, he gazes wistfully at the wife of the house, and in general gives vent to a torrid flow of masculine unreason. That's the extent of the male knowledge of linen cleansing.

Mr. Jobson happened to have forgotten his latch key when he went to the office on Monday morning, and so when he brought along his old school pal to his house he rang the door bell. The servant being busy in the basement handling the washing, Mrs. Jobson, thinking that the bell ringer was probably a rug peddler or book agent or some such personage, answered the ring herself. Mrs. Jobson had been assisting the servant with the linen. She was in an out-at-elbows red elderdown wrapper, with the sleeves rolled 'way up, and her hair was done up tightly in kids. Her nose was shiny from the steam of wash day. When she saw Mr. Jobson and his swell-looking companion, she simply bolted up the front stairs for it. Mr. Jobson exuding a merry, if somewhat hard sounding, laugh as she went.

"Ah, caught you in house negligence, did we, my dear?" he called up the stairs after her in a rollicking, oh-how-naughty-naughty tone voice, that yet had a certain metallic ring in Mrs. Jobson's ears.

"I'll be down in just a minute," called Mrs. Jobson over the banisters, and then Mr. Jobson and his old school chum went into the parlor. Mrs. Jobson hastily dug out the powder chamois and touched up her face, put on presentable garments, removed the kids from her hair and set it right, and then she made her appearance in the parlor.

"My dear, you've often heard me speak of Tommy Swiftboy, my old schoolmate, haven't you?" said Mr. Jobson, formally presenting his friend to his wife. "Remember my telling you how we played hooky once for three weeks at a stretch and hid our books under a sidewalk every day? Well, here's the self-same hooky player—blew in on me at my office this morning, and, although I wouldn't say it to his face, I'm just tickled to death to see him. Brought him up to see what a nice little plant I've got—his dad used to say that we'd both of us land in state's prison before we came of age. And here I am, a settled-down old fogey, and he's got a wife and three children—got their pictures in his watch—at his home in New York. I wanted to drag him off to a restaurant for a bite to eat, but he wouldn't hear of it—wanted to look me over under my own vine and fig tree, he said, and he hates restaurant or hotel cookery. Can't we have just a little bite of luncheon, my dear?"

Mr. Jobson gazed at Mrs. Jobson amiably, but with a meeting of the eyebrows that said, as plain as day: "And it wants to be an almighty neat luncheon, at that!"

Mrs. Jobson's heart sank as she thought of the remains of Sunday's turkey in the refrigerator, and nothing else. The steamy fragrance of the wash-day suds that permeated the house caught Mr. Jobson's nostrils, and he sniffed wonderingly and with no manifestations of enthusiasm over it.

"Nothing elaborate, my dear, you know," said Mr. Jobson, with a searching look at Mrs. Jobson. "Just what you've got in the ice chest, you know. Mr. Swiftboy is a domestic man, and he understands that we may have taken you unprepared."

Mr. Jobson's glances at Mrs. Jobson said as plainly as if the words were written on a placard hanging around his neck: "You just want to see to it that there's a top-notch lunch on the table in just 15 minutes, or there'll be some echoes around here later on."

Mrs. Jobson, after a moment's desultory conversation, excused herself, ran down the basement steps, placed a hat on the colored woman's head and sent her out by the alley gate after luncheon food. It was mostly of the delicatessen and canned variety. There was some sliced tongue and ham, potatoes, canned salmon, hurriedly constructed potato salad, the remains of Sunday's turkey, raspberry jam and coffee and tea on the table when, after a frenzied scurrying around, Mrs. Jobson got the table set with fresh napery and the best silver and called the men to luncheon. Mr. Jobson surveyed the table approvingly, as did his old school chum, who was a well-groomed looking man, who looked as if he might be no stranger to lobsters and grilled bones.

"Well, my dear, you've certainly done very well, considering how little you expected us," said Mr. Jobson, beamingly, and then they went at the lunch. "Oh, by the way, have you any bottled beer on ice?" asked Mr. Jobson, after a moment.

"No," replied Mrs. Jobson, "the last was used on Saturday, and the beer man hasn't been around yet, but I can send—"

"Oh, never mind, my dear—never mind at all," said Mr. Jobson, amiably. "Get along bully without it, can't we, Swiftboy? Guess we'd be a heap better off without the stuff, anyhow."

Then Mr. Jobson, while his friend was bending over his plate, gave Mrs. Jobson a glance that contained a world of meaning.

"Swiftboy," said Mr. Jobson, "you'll have to overlook this hasty affair, but you know—"

"Overlook it?" interrupted his friend, helping himself liberally to the salad. "Overlook it? I guess not. I'm going to do just the best I know how by it. It's immense—haven't enjoyed things to eat so much since I left home. Mrs. Jobson, I congratulate you upon your skill in formulating a luncheon in a case of emergency."

Thus the luncheon passed off, and awhile after it was over the two men went downtown. There was a steely glitter in Mr. Jobson's eye when he returned home that evening.

"Madam," he inquired of Mrs. Jobson, as soon as he had taken off his hat, "what do you think this establishment is—a New York soubrette's flat?"

"Why, what are you?" Mrs. Jobson started to answer.

"When I invite a friend, a substantial business man, up to my home for luncheon," continued Mr. Jobson, sternly, "can't you do any better than to regale him and load him up with stuff such as a Miss Tottie Coughdrop sets before her chorus girl friends when she asks them to a one a. m. feed?"

"But you brought him so unexpectedly, and—"

"What kind of stuff do you think grocery store sliced ham is to set before one of your husband's guests? Couldn't you have rung in some cold boiled onions? What kind of a way is it, anyhow, to send a black servant somersaulting and handspringing out the alley gate after zinc-enclosed eatables when guests are sitting in the parlor waiting for something wherewith to appease their hunger? Why couldn't you have had some nice home-made oyster patties, for instance? How about a couple of fried chickens? Wouldn't they have been about the thing? Do you ever cook anything around here, anyhow, except the stuff that you dole out to me at dinner? Have you ever got anything fit to eat stowed away in the ice box, like other civilized people? Do you—"

"But to-day is wash day, and—"

"It wouldn't make any difference if it was Decoration day, or Independence day, or Labor day, or any other old day; you'd have to kite that servant out the alley, and—oh, and by the way, it's mighty funny what becomes of all the beer—not even a bottle of beer to give the man. I'd like—"

"Now, you know that nobody in the house touches it but yourself, and—"

"Mighty queer where it goes; mysterious, to say the least. Whole thing was the worst frost, the daisiest make-believe for a luncheon that I ever saw, and that's no—"

"But Mr. Swiftboy said that he really enjoyed it, and he said—"

"Yes; I know what he said. That was sarcasm, Mrs. Jobson—plain, every day sarcasm. I'll bet he said to himself while he was getting off those remarks that the next time any friend of his hailed him for a home luncheon there'd be blue apples on peach trees! And that's what there'll be the next time I invite a friend up here for a bunco luncheon, Mrs. Jobson—just remember that!"—Washington Star.

His Character.
The old hiring fairs are still in some rural districts of England. There is a story of an old Gloucestershire farmer who, seeing a likely lad at such a place, opened negotiations with a view to engaging him. "Hast got a character from thy last place?" the farmer asked. "No," replied the boy; "but my old gaffer be about somewhere, and I can get he to write one." "Very well," was the reply. "Thee get it and meet I here again at four o'clock." The farmer and the boy met at the appointed hour. "Hast got thy character?" was the query. The answer was short and sharp: "No, but I ha' got thine, and I beant a-coming."—Youth's Companion.

Jack—Who is that fine-looking girl that just bowed to you?
Tom (gloomily)—Oh, she's my sister.
"Why, old chap, I wasn't aware that you had a sister."
"I didn't know it myself until last night."—Chicago Daily News.

CIVILIZED INDIANS.

Kansas Red Men Paid for Their Residence of Fifty Years.

Interesting History of a Progressive People—Have a Record That Is Almost National—Noted Leaders.

The final payment by the government of the Chippewa and Munsee, or Christian Indians, on their reservation, about eight miles west of Ottawa, Kan., on November 9, 1900, signalized an event of no small historical value, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

These little bands have an interesting history connected with their residence of more than 50 years in this county. Prior to 1838 the Chippewas comprised a small band in the vicinity of Detroit, and in that year, headed by their chief, Estomquit, or Francis McCoons, moved to this county and located on their reservation, which was conveyed to the descendants of the tribe by patents from the lands subject to sale and conveyance, as in the case of ordinary citizens. Chief Estomquit was at one time one of a delegation of Indians from Canada who visited England at the time of King George, and he also spent six months in France, and was the only one in the delegation who could converse without the aid of an interpreter, as he readily spoke the French language. On this account he became quite noted, and he never forgot the distinction he achieved by his foreign visit.

The Munsee, or Christian Indians, have almost a national record. They are a remnant of the Delaware tribe, who came under the influence of the Moravian missionaries in Pennsylvania about the middle of the eighteenth century. After a varied history they located on the Muskingum river in what is now Tuscarawas county, O. There, during the revolutionary war, they were attacked by a detachment of militia from Wheeling who were fighting Indians and who thought there were no good Indians but dead ones. Coming suddenly upon the Munsees while they were gathering corn, the soldiers promised them protection. But after they had been gathered into their little church the soldiers decided by vote to exterminate them, and accordingly that night and the next day 96 of the band were put to death without resistance and their church burned over their heads. The remnant of the band migrated to Leavenworth county, Kansas, in the early portion of this century. They have all along been attended by Moravian missionaries. In 1859 they removed to this county and bought an interest in the Chippewa reservation, and in 1861 Rev. Joseph Romig was sent to them by the Moravian church. He labored among them for ten years, when he retired and other missionaries took up the work. In February of this year Rev. Romig returned to the reservation, after an absence of 29 years. The venerable missionary is much impressed with the changed condition of his little band, and as he sat in the little mission church last Thursday witnessing the final act in the government dealings with the tribes, he was much impressed with the contrast between the intelligent, educated people that now are and the untutored tribe of half a century ago. Then none could speak English; today none use the Indian language. Some of the young men are graduates of Haskell Indian training school; some are teachers in that school; others are in various states, filling positions of trust and usefulness. Nicholas Hurr is a teacher in the Indian training school at Fort Lewis, Col., receiving a salary of $100 per month. James Plake is clerk in the Indian school at Geneva, Neb., at a salary of $1,000 per annum.

The reservation comprises seven sections of land in the western portion of this county, and is locally described as "the Chippewa Hills." The little mission church and schoolhouse combined is located in a valley in the midst of the hills, which rear their woody peaks aloft in fitting similitude of the mountains "round about" the house of the Lord in olden times. Maj. W. R. Honnell, Indian agent from Horton, Kan., made the payment on behalf of the government of $42,000, which the government has held for a number of years. Each member of the tribe received a check on the United States depository at Lawrence for $491.47, each sum being the per capita share of the fund. Children under 18 years of age are required to have guardians appointed and approved by the probate court, with sufficient sureties. At the same time Maj. Honnell delivered to those entitled thereto the United States patent for the land owned or inherited by each. Thus the events of the day closed the tribal relations of this people. Thus were they released from all connection with their Great Father at Washington, except that which they owe to him as citizens of the United States.

Thus is the noble red man swallowed up by the great Caucasian tide which surrounds him. Already many of the Indians of these tribes have married and mingled with their white neighbors. Notable among such marriages was that of the missionary's daughter to young Kill Buck about 15 years ago; since which time they have been in Alaska as Moravian missionaries. Two of the most impressive personages present at this last meeting were MacKostoe, a Sac chief, and William Kill Buck, one of the most venerable members of the Chippewa and Munsee tribe.

WILLIE VISITING IN THE COUNTRY.

I wish 'at I lived out here,
Where there are hills to climb,
And where a boy can slide down like
A flash in winter time;
Where they are drifts to tumble in
And ponds to skate upon—
I wish my Cousin John was me
And I was Cousin John!

I'd like to have a colt to ride
And lams 'n' things to pet,
With apples in the cellar, yet;
I'd like to live where I could whoop
Around with all my might
And never have to be afraid
A cop would come in sight.

It's jolly sitting in the sled
When uncle drives to town,
And lets the horses walk up hill
And makes them gallop down!
It's jolly getting out behind,
Sometimes, and hanging on—
I wish my Cousin John was me
And I was Cousin John!

JOHNNY VISITING IN THE CITY.

I wish 'at I lived here, where things
Are all set at the door,
And where you see so many sights
You never saw before;
I'd like to ride in nice, warm cars
That whiz along the street,
Instead of in a bobbed, where
You nearly freeze your feet.

They never have no wood to chop,
Nor cows nor sheep to tend;
They never have to carry slop
To where the pigs are penned;
They never carry water from
A well that's far away.
Nor every night and morning feed
The stock a ton of hay.

They never have no cows to milk,
Nor other chores to do,
And every time they turn around
They look at something new;
There's always lots that's going on,
The streets are never still—
I wish that Cousin Will was me,
And I was Cousin Will!

A NIGHT OF TERROR.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she could not live till morning," writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night. "All thought that she must soon die from pneumonia, but she be bed for Dr. Kings New Discovery, saying that it had more than once saved her life, and had cured her of consumption. After three doses she slept easily all night, and its further use completely cured her." This marvelous medicine is guaranteed to cure all throat, chest and lung diseases. Only 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottle free at C. E. Holton's drug store.

A powerful engine cannot be run with a weak boiler, and we can't keep up the strain of an active life with a weak stomach; neither can we stop the human machine to make repairs. If the stomach cannot digest enough food to keep the body strong, such a preparation as Kodol Dyspepsia Cure should be used. It digests what you eat and it simply can't help but do you good. Howard Gardner.

A MONSTER DEVIL FISH

Destroying its victim, is a type of constipation. The power of this murderous malady is felt on organs and nerves and muscles and brain. There is no health till it's overcome. But Dr. King's New Life Pills are a safe and certain cure. Best in the world for stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Only 25 cents at C. E. Holton's drug store.

Fair tonight in east; probably occasional rains in west portion; warmer Sunday, increasing cloudiness and probably rain; northeast winds becoming south, south to brisk on the coast.

Like bad dollars, all counterfeits of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve are worthless. The original quickly cures piles, sores and all skin diseases. Howard Gardner.

COLD STEEL OR DEATH.

"There is but one small chance to save your life and that is through an operation," was the awful prospect set before Mrs. I. B. Hunt, of Lime Ridge, Wis., by her doctor after vainly trying to cure her of a frightful case of stomach trouble and yellow jaundice. He didn't count on the marvellous power of Electric Bitters to cure stomach and liver troubles, but she heard of it, took seven bottles, was wholly cured, avoided surgeon's knife, never weighs more and feels better than ever. It's positively guaranteed to cure stomach, liver and kidney troubles and never disappoints. Price 50c at C. E. Holton's drug store.

AN ANCIENT BELIEF.

The ancients believed that rheumatism "as the work of a demon within a man. Any one who has had an attack of static or inflammatory rheumatism will agree that the affliction is demonic enough to warrant the belief. It has never been claimed that Chamberlain's Pain Balm would cast out demons, but it will cure rheumatism, and hundreds bear testimony to the truth of this statement. One application relieves the pain, and this quick relief which it affords is alone worth many times its cost. For sale by C. E. Holton, Druggist.

One Minute Cough Cure, cures
That is what it was made for

A FRIGHTFUL BLUNDER.

Will often cause a horrible burn, scald, cut or bruise. Bucklen's Arnica Salve, the best in the world, will kill the pain and promptly heal it. Cures old sores, fever sores, ulcers, boils, felons, corns, all skin eruptions. Best pile cure on earth. Only 25 cents a box. Cure guaranteed. Sold by C. E. Holton.

Millions of people are familiar with DeWitt's Little Early Risers and those who use them find them to be famous little liver pills. Never gripe. Howard Gardner.

It appearing to the satisfaction of the court by an affidavit that a summons has been issued in favor of the above named defendant to obtain a decree for dissolving the bonds of matrimony now existing between the said plaintiff and the said defendant, and it further appearing that the said defendant cannot, after due diligence, be found in the State of North Carolina, It is now ordered that the defendant Charles L. Burks, take notice that an action entitled as above has been commenced in the Superior Court of the county of Guilford to obtain a decree dissolving the bonds of matrimony existing between the said plaintiff and the said defendant and will further take notice that he is required to appear at the next term of the Superior Court held for Guilford county at the court house in Greensboro on the 18th day of February, 1901, then and there to answer or demur to the complaint in said action, or the plaintiff will apply to the court for the relief demanded.

This the 29th day of November, 1900.
J. H. J. NELSON,
Clerk Superior Court.

READ THIS.

A period of 41 years is sufficient to determine the success or failure of a business. The W. W. KIMBALL COMPANY was established in 1856. Since that time they have manufactured and sold about sixty-six thousand pianos and about two hundred and twenty thousand organs. The factories have been enlarged from time to time until they are now twice the size of any piano and organ factory in the world. Kimball Pianos and Organs are the very highest possible standard. They are celebrated throughout the musical world for their wonderful depth, brilliancy and purity of tone, their great strength of construction and durability—making them the special favorites with all the great musicians and musical instructors throughout the country as seen by the hundreds of endorsements and many gold medals awarded in competition with other makes. Kimball Pianos and Organs are sold direct from their large factories at one small factory profit. They are fully guaranteed. We shall be glad to hear from any one desiring strictly first-class instrument.

COMTESSE IN WRESTLING BOUT

Athletic American Woman, Defeated by Her Fiance, Throws Man Who Taunted Her in Two Minutes.

The young Comtesse de Becker is the heroine of an episode which has been excitedly discussed in the most exclusive Franco-American set.

A tall blonde, the comtesse is fond of her reputation as an all-round athlete. She was formerly Helene Richman, of Detroit. Two years ago she divorced her titled Viennese husband.

Lately her strength being challenged by her fiance, she offered to wrestle him before 20 intimate friends of both sexes. His victory was stubbornly disputed. The first bout lasted 20 minutes and the second 14. The comtesse was defeated twice. She wore a suit which was startlingly practical.

After the necessary toilet the wrestlers and the crowd adjourned to a supper in a private room at the Cafe Anglaise, where in the course of a joyous feast the comtesse was taunted upon her defeat. She promptly challenged the main offender, Count de Lautrec, and defeated him in two minutes, proving that it took a really strong man to beat her.

Parisian society is making such a protest over the comtesse's actions that she may make her residence in London hereafter.

Not Her Father's Friend.

A doting Chicago father whose first name is Arthur has a little daughter four years old. The family recently moved to a new locality in the city only a few doors away from a street car barn where several mules are kept.

The next morning after arriving at the new home the little girl heard one of the street car mules braying. It was the first time she had ever heard a mule bray, and she listened for a long time before she said:

"Mamma, is that one of papa's friends calling him?"

"No," said her mother; "I hear no one calling your father."

"Yes, there is," said the small girl. "L'sten, now; don't you hear him calling 'Ar-thur, Ar-thur, Ar-thur?'"

"Oh, yes," replied the mother. "I hear him calling now. But that isn't one of your father's friends. He has more sense than most of your father's friends."—Chicago Tribune.
